

The Legislature will convene on the first Tuesday of January which this year falls on the 6th.

The census work of 1880 is not yet completed, although nearly four years has been spent upon it.

What a walling there will be over empty Democratic stockings, after Grover Santa Claus has distributed his Christmas gifts.

Sixty per cent. of the Connellsville coke ovens are closed. This fact shows the dreary condition of manufacturing industries at the present time.

Mr. CLEVELAND having announced that he is "not much of a chopper", a smart shoemaker in Virginia has sent him a pair of boots, hoping perhaps that he may be a "good strong kicker."

Pennsylvania is going to send her entire force of National guards, to take part in the ceremony of Governor Cleveland's inauguration. She will thus show that she "don't keep spite," if she did poll 81,000 majority against him.

"We don't want offices, just let us dictate who shall fill them," appears to be the modest demand of the bolters who elected Cleveland. Like the boy with the supple-jack, they want the President to dance when they pull the string.

The New York Tribune has become so radically Republican that it now opposes any participation in the primaries on the part of the mugwumps who voted for Cleveland. It defines an Independent Republican as "a Republican who cannot be depended upon."

A memorial from the Women's Suffrage Association of Pennsylvania was presented in the Senate last week, protesting against the admission of Dakota as a State while it denied suffrage to women. Look out for a "crowing hen" on the political banners of 1888.

When the "boys" marched down the streets of Washington for the grand review after the close of the war, how many of them thought that within twenty years, the rebel Brigadiers whom they had just conquered, would be on top again, and in control of the government they had attempted to destroy?

The Brooklyn Asylum fire turns out to be a more horrible affair than was at first apprehended. The remains of twenty children have been recovered from the ruins. Twenty others are still unaccounted for, but it is hoped that they will be found at the homes of kind people who gave them shelter when driven out by the fire.

Ex-Governor "Andy" Curtin says: "The people have declared at the polls that there must be a change of Government, and you cannot change the government unless you change the agencies." "Andy" is now a leading Democratic Congressman, and this is his way of announcing the old doctrine "To the victors belong the spoils."

The bill admitting Dakota as a State passed the Senate last week by a strict party vote, every Democrat in that body voting against it. Having been made a political question it will undoubtedly be defeated in the House. Dakota is too strongly Republican to hope for admission so long as the Democrats control legislation at Washington.

It is a pity some of Mr. Blaine's alleged friends do not have on some points, as much good sense as himself. In a recent conversation he declared that to persist in naming him or any one else for the candidacy of 1888 only keeps alive fanciful dissensions. That is good sense and ought to close the mouths of some noisy demagogues.—Lancaster Inquirer.

FRIDAY last, was the coldest day of the year, and the coldest experienced in the West and South for several years. At points in Minnesota and Dakota the mercury fell to 23° below zero. At Petersburg, Va., it registered 13° above zero, the coldest weather known there within the past ten years. Travel on the railroads throughout the country was much delayed.

Preparations for the inauguration of Mr. Cleveland are being vigorously pushed forward, and there is every indication that Democratic zeal will be exhausted in the effort to make it a perfect carnival. It is but natural, after such a protracted season of adversity, that the Democrats should make the most of their accidental victory. It may be a long time before they have a chance for another jubilee; therefore, let them dance while the sunshine lasts.

The mossbacks and the kids of the Democracy are having a picnic time over the selection of Cleveland's cabinet. "Old men for council, young men for war," is an aphorism sweet to the ears of the ancients, while the youngsters insist that those who bore the heat and burden of the day are entitled to the spoils of victory. The fun has just begun, and will increase with the efforts of Mr. Cleveland to meet an unlimited demand, with a limited supply of offices.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From Our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20, 1884. The third week in Congress has been the busiest and most interesting of the present session. The Senate first said, by a majority of ten, that Dakota should be received into the Union as a State; then they listened to some speeches on the silver question from Senators Beck and Sherman; discussed naval appropriations; touched on Indian land leases; gave hurried attention to a number of minor matters, and adjourned on the 19th.

Mr. BLAINE has discontinued his libel suit against the Indianapolis Sentinel, and that sweet scented Journal, seizes the opportunity to charge him with being guilty of monumental lying in every stage of the prosecution. It is a mistake on the part of Mr. Blaine to notice the assault of the Sentinel. Its brutal abuse could not have injured him in public estimation, and it would have been passed over in silence except by the depraved portion of the press. He should have remembered that "you cannot touch pitch and remain undefiled." The public will be glad to know that the case will not be further prosecuted.

The Irish World says: If every member of the Cabinet were an Irish-American, they would not bring back the Irish-Americans whom the last election made up their minds, that they had supported the pro-British policy of free trade long enough. It is an insult to the intelligence of any Irish-American who knows what the Democratic pro-British policy of free-trade means, to suppose that he is going to support a party that is opposed to protection, simply because a man of his race is appointed to a Cabinet position. Mr. Cleveland's advisers ought to see this. If they do not see it, they show how little respect they have for those they are trying to conciliate.

Senator Cooper, Chairman of the Republican State Committee says editorially in his paper (Media Aeterna): "It is remarkable what anxiety Democratic editors are showing that the Republicans should receive back into full communion the apostate mugwumps, &c., who helped to give Cleveland the victory. Are they so soon tired of their new allies? It would look better if they would try to keep this new accession in the Democratic party. We don't remember of ever having read that Benedict Arnold was welcomed with any degree of enthusiasm into British circles after he had turned traitor to his country, and it is certain he was never afterward asked to rejoin the American army. Treason is something that the natural man doesn't admire."

The "World's Exposition at New Orleans was opened on Tuesday of last week by the President from a room in the White House at Washington. The machinery in the exposition was connected with the White House by an electric wire; the address of the Director General was telegraphed the President and his reply returned by lightning, and then the President by simply pressing a button, set the immense machinery—hundreds of miles away—in motion. The President was surrounded by a brilliant assemblage including Foreign Ministers, members of the cabinet and of Congress, and other distinguished persons, and many ladies. An immense throng of people filled the exhibition building while the opening ceremonies were in progress.

HAVING assisted to the best of its ability to place the Democrats in power in this State, the Philadelphia Press is now laboring to get up another bolt in the party, to prevent the re-election of Senator Cameron. It is observable, however, that not a single respectable Republican journal in the State sympathizes with the Press in its efforts to get up another kick. People whose sense outranks that of an idiot, don't monkey with a buzz saw the second time. There is a ninety-five Republican majority in the Legislature, and there is no probability that any number of members will refuse to enter the caucus. In caucus, there will doubtless be several gentlemen voted for as candidates for Senator, and the choice of the majority will be decided. If by this be so, judging by the expression of the Republican press throughout the State, we think Mr. Cameron will be chosen to succeed himself.

ALL this talk about Mr. Cleveland favoring civil service reform is mere rot. The men who won the victory for him did not fight the battle for the sole honor of winning. The public patronage will be used for all it is worth, and the Democratic leaders will entrench themselves in their position by every means in their power. Let nobody forget that no party ever succeeded to power that did not straightway use every means to hold its new position. Talk about continuing civil service reform is simply intended to blind. The "boys" know better, and they who live to see the expiration of the year 1885 will find a nearly unbroken line of Democrats filling all the places under the government, from President down to the smallest village postmaster. Talk is cheap, but the fruits of victory are not going to be frittered away by a party whose appetite is sharpened by a fast of twenty-four years, and whose axiom is, "To the victors belong the spoils."

State Troops at the Inauguration.

HARRISBURG, December 17.—Under instructions from Adjutant General Guthrie, Colonies Goddard and Hastings of the N. I. and Guard left for Washington to-day to make arrangements for the accommodation of the State troops on inauguration Day.

THE SENATORSHIP.

HOW CAMERON WON IN A FAIR AND SQUARE APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The anti-Cameron revolt is mostly on paper, unless representative Republicans from many parts of Pennsylvania are mistaken. Their explanation is that, if it proceeds from the Wells of Pittsburgh, who bought the Philadelphia Press as the first step toward securing for himself Cameron's seat. The election is over, with Wells in possession of the paper and Cameron in possession of the Legislature.

The alleged revolt started in, and is almost entirely confined to, Mr. Wells' own city, Pittsburgh. The fact remains that the Allegheny delegation, with possibly one exception, is solid for Cameron and is not to be shaken.

It is charged that Cameron took care of himself while every one else was occupied in carrying the State for Blaine. Blaine might be taken for a witness whether Cameron's support was not as cordial and efficient as any man's, and whether the 81,000 majority was not largely due to his exertions.

The ninety odd majority in the Legislature is in proportion to the popular vote, and the preponderance of that majority for Cameron is due to the fact that his opponents could not prevent it. Take, for instance, the Allegheny county, where the nominations are made by popular vote, and where there was neither buying nor packing, every Republican had there two to one of the Republicans. Take again Chester county, where the nomination was made by popular vote, Cameron candidates had 100. These are what are called "anti-Cameron" counties, and where, if anywhere, his enemies could expect to make headway. In Bradford, of the 112 delegates in the convention, Cameron had 103. In his own county, where he is well known, the Republicans gave him their all as a voluntary offering. Lehigh and Schuylkill took similar action. There was neither buying nor selling, but a fair and square appeal to the people, with a result favorable to Cameron even beyond the expectations of his supporters.

MURDERED BY A MASKED ROBBER.

CLEVELAND, December 10.—At 8 o'clock last evening a farmer named Harrington, living two miles from Geneva, was called to the door by a knock, and upon opening it he was confronted by a masked man, who sighted along the barrel of a revolver and said: "I want your money." Harrington took a small sum from his pocket and handed it to the robber who took it and exclaimed: "I want the balance." At that moment the mask fell from his face, and Mrs. Harrington, who was standing near cried out: "Oh, I know him!" "You do, do you?" she asked. "Yes, he is the man who shot me," she replied. The bullet, going through her shoulder, was brought out by the doctor. Mrs. Harrington ran out of the house and to a neighbor's for help. Returning with friends the evidences of a desperate struggle were found in the house. Harrington lay dead on the floor with a bullet in his forehead. Mrs. Harrington recognized the murderer as a fellow named Peck, who lived two miles from the farm. Lewis Webster has been arrested on the charge of murdering Harrington. He was a man recognized by Mrs. Harrington, but whose name was first given as Peck. He was quietly taken in a sleigh by the Sheriff to Jefferson, in order to avoid lynching.

The Revolution in Corea.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Times' Hong Kong dispatch says: "It is reported from Nagasaki that the Coreans have rebelled, that the King has fled to the sea, and that the general was killed. The outbreak occurred during an entertainment given by the King to the British Minister and others."

"On a given signal the King's son and six Ministers were massacred. The Queen also disappeared. One of the rebels, an American, and the Chinese troops and Japanese. The King placed himself under the protection of the Japanese. "The foreign residents of Corea are safe. The gunboat Espoir has arrived in the Seoul river. The motives of the rebels are unknown. The results are certain to be of interest to several Powers."

A Farmer and Drover Fighting.

READING, December 15.—Reinholdville, Lancaster county, just across the line from Berks, was the scene of a quarrel between neighbors to-day, which may be attended with very serious results. The parties are the rebels, and that his general, and Dennis Arendle, a farmer. Wenrich punished Brendle's son for playfully hitting him with a strap, Brendle visited Wenrich for the purpose of resenting this. It is not known who struck the first blow, but the result was a bloody one. He was hit on the head and his skull partially laid open. He is now lying in a critical condition. No arrests have been made.

A Michigan Poor House Burned.

DETROIT, Dec. 19.—The Lapeer county poor house was burned last night. Thirty-seven inmates were turned out in their night clothes. One insane woman named Bertha Rockwell dashed back into the building and was burned to death. Another woman had run three miles through the snow before she was recaptured. The thermometer at the time was below zero.

Three Acres of Land Cave In.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., December 17.—Another great cave-in occurred this morning at No. 11 mine of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Company, known as the Lance colliery, at Plymouth, three acres of land sinking nearly five feet. One house was wrecked, but nobody was injured. It is reported that after careful examination the loss to machinery and the mine is placed at $30,000.

A SCHOOL IN FLAMES.

CRIME OF A CHILD.

ROCKY MOUNT, W. Va., Dec. 18.—Several days ago a brief dispatch stated that John Massey, aged 12 years, had shot and killed his cousin, a girl of 7. Particulars were wanting, but investigation has discovered the following facts: On the south side of Greenbrier River in a miserable hut having but one room, lived Andrew Massey, who is regarded as a dangerous character. His son John, and his niece above mentioned. The family ate and slept together. Their clothing was insufficient, being mostly cast off garments. Massey was in the habit of leaving the children for days while he wandered around the country drinking and stealing. On December 5 Massey left his hut, and his whereabouts was, for several days, unknown. On his return he found the girl lying dead in the bed, covered with blood, and the boy missing. Later in the day he went to Squire Jackson's, where he remained over night, and next morning he told Mr. Jackson of his discovery. Mentioning the boy had turned up in town, and was preparing to leave the place when he was arrested. Squire Jackson impaneled a jury and visited the hotel. It was found on examination that the body was pierced by two bullets, both having entered the shoulder. On being questioned the boy admitted that he had killed his cousin, but said it was an accident. On the strength of the boy's story a verdict of accidental killing was rendered. The fact that there were two bullet holes now indicates that it was a case of murder, and the charge of theft in order to put him in a reformatory.

A Good Day's Hunt.

ERIC, Dec. 17.—This morning Edward and Frank Root came into town with three bears and a deer, killed, after a desperate fight. Having wounded the deer they followed until it sank from loss of blood, and while eating their lunch by the carcasses they were attacked by the ravenous bears, that had followed the deer's blood-stained tracks.

INSANE IN THE FOREST.

NASHVILLE, December 17.—Several months ago the confidential clerk of Miss Maud St. Pierre, a wealthy English lady residing at Chattanooga, disappeared suddenly. His coat and hat were left in his office, and his books were straight. Miss St. Pierre spent a great deal of money advertising, searching the dark and dreary river, but no clue could be found. Some days ago hunters near Winchester Tenn., going through a hollow found a veritable wild man, evidently insane. To-night he was identified as the long missing private secretary.
